Obituary:

Peter Ross LUSK, who was affectionately known as Norm, was born in Maleny on 20 September 1960 at the Maleny Hospital. He was the son of Jim and Betty (deceased) Lusk, the third youngest of a family of 12 children.

Norm was educated at the Maleny School, that is, apart from the times he spent under the bridge smoking. He began his working life at the Maleny Butter Factory until he was transferred to Caboolture where he continued working until he was taken ill in late February this year.

Norm will be sadly missed for the great job he did mixing the yoghurt and performing any other duties that were asked of him. His fellow workmates have commented many times that a bloke of Norm's calibre could never be replaced.

Norm's family would like to pay tribute to the Sommers and Cork families who treated Norm as one of their own, and indeed was at their homes probably more than ours.

Norm will always be remembered as being a great mate, extremely generous, loved his rum, and was always helping his family and many friends on his weekends and holidays.

To conclude, these final words will surely be remembered:

"I'LL 'AVE 'ALF!"

"BORE IT UP THOSE BASTARDS"
